It is also a mistake to say that Hongkong is a Colony where there is little respect for women. There cannot be the least doubt that had the whole truth about BANDMANN been elicited at the trial, the eminent tragedian would have run a great risk of being lynched. As it was he had a nare

The Wanganui Herald heads its article "A Great Tragedian," and writes:-HERR his libel prosecution, for the evidence might certainly have led the jury of a freer community to have arrived at a different conclusion. The evidence goes to show that this "great tragedian" did use very rough language to the ladies of his company One witness stated that BANDMANN admitted to him that he "had used to Miss Mylforn some of the filthiest language I ever heard out of a man's mouth to a woman," Upon being remonstrated with, this interpreter f "the sweet swan of Avon," remarked that "you can never get anything out of a woman unless you frighten her. > LAST night's China Mail says :- " The audacity of Sir John Pope Hennessy in making statements is fairly well known to most of those who have had anything to do with that talented gentleman and to many others who never saw him in the flesh. Whatever suits Sir John on any subject is adopted with a glorious screnity and an utter in difference as to the truth or untruth of what he i quoting, and is put forward in 'so specious fashion, that those who know no better are only too frequently imposed upon. But the remar able thing about all these statements is that sooner or later the light of truth is let in on them by some one who knows, and the bubble bursts and vanishes." Is the man who writes such ar rant rubbish as this for our evening contemporary a blatant fool, or merely a grossly ignorant nonentity? He says that Sir John Pope Hen nessy is in the habit of making in public a lot o statements which are untrue; and then remarks that the remarkable thing about all these statements is that sooner or later the light of truth is let in on them, &-c. We think, and the public will think with us, that, presuming these statements of Governor Hennessy, which relate to public affairs well known to everybody, to be false, it would indeed be a remarkable thing if the light of truth were not let in on them sooner or later. Our evening contemporary forgets about there being a happy medium in everything and in trying to blacken and vilify Governor Hennessy at all costs, invariably permits petty spite to degenerate into malicious falsehood, with the inevitable result of disgusting the public, and making itself a laughing stock.

WEARIED beyond endurance by the tediousness of a long-winded pleader, a Kentuckian Judge put himself out of his misery and his termenter out of countenance by suddenly exclaiming:-- " If the court is right, and she thinks she air, why then you are wrong, and she knows you is. Shut up!" Almost as rude in speech was Judge Dowling, who, after serving as fireman and police-officer, became by election one of the Magistrates of the Empire City, "What are you reading from, sir?" asked he of a counsel. " From the statute of 1876, your Honour," was the reply. "Well," said Dowling, "you needn't read any more; I'm judge in this court, and my statutes

PROFESSOR Rudolphe gave his third and final public performance at the Hongkong Hotel last evening before a large audience. There was unfortunately some trouble at the commencement of the entertainment, for which Mr. Rudolphe was in no way to blame, the row being caused by some of the Hotel officials, who would appear to have been under the influence of liquor, a state of affairs much to be deplored. The performance commenced with the wonderful fancy shots of which we wrote two days ago, the scientific display being well received and much applauded. After the interval the Professor was faced by a well-known amateur in a game of 500 up, the start. After some excellent play by both comonly 4 points, although he doubtless could stretched. We might mention, for the benefit of those present at the performance last night, that it is a most unusual thing for onlookers to make remarks on the shots while a match is being played. Two very glaring breaches of the above rule were quite prominent, the offenders being persons who certainly ought to have known better.

WAR correspondents, observes the Home News, lead exciting and adventurous lives. They can never be certain of a peaceful half-hour at home, and when one campaign is ended may at any moment expect to be dispatched to share the trials of another. Nor is it only that they are continually on the move. While actually at their work they must be prepared to face danger, endure hardships and exposure. More than all, they must, if they would give loyal service to the journals they represent, be men of iron constitution, with boundless energy and power of endurance. A new proof of their value has just been terday. The defendants, it appears, on being afforded by one of the most distinguished of their number. > TARDY reparation, says the Daily Telegraph, has at length been made to the memory of a mortally wronged German woman, whose name has been unjustly held up to public scorn and contumely in the place of her birth for more than two centuries and a half. In the year 1617 the city of Tangermuende was destroyed by fire, and two years later several persons were tried, condemned, and executed at Brandenburg for acts of incendiarism, alleged to have caused the calamity Grete (Margaret) Minden, the daughter of a Tangermuende patrician. She was stripped and chained to a tall post in the market place. The five fingers of her right hand were torn off with red-not pincers. Her arms and breasts were deeply scared with glowing frons. Finally, she was burnt to death slowly. From first to last her martyrdom lasted nearly an hour. Ever since that time a so-called "Conflagration Sermon " has been preached on each successive fourteenth Sunday after Trinity in the principal Tangermuende Church. This discourse describes Grete Minden as an abominable monster, the refuse of mankind, who burned down her native town to revenge herself upon the municipality heritance. It was a story by the eminent novelist Theodore Fontane, in which Grete Minden figured as a heroine, that suggested an investigation of the documentary evidence connected with her case to Ludolf Parisius, a member of the Reichstag, and this gentleman found out that the unfortunate woman had most undoubtedly been the victim of a judicial murder. He lost no time muende authorities, and on Sunday, the 10th September, when the clergyman on duty ascended. fourth "Conflagration Sermon," he prefaced his discourse by announcing to the congregation that recent inquiry into the origin of the great Tancermuende Fire had completely exonerated Grete Minden from any complicity with the authors of that catastrophe. THE GREAT COMET OF 1882. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH.

SIR,-Some friends have asked me to state publicly—for the sake of those who are alarmed by certain vapourings of Mr. Piazzi Smyth-mybelief, already expressed privately in many quarters, that no danger to the globe we live on needs be apprehended from the probable destruction, before the end of this century, of the Great Comet which is being watched with so much interests in all parts of the world.

To every one who has questioned me on this subject I have replied, and I now willingly repeat, that, in my opinion, the only immediate result to be anticipated from such an event is a disturbance of the sun's economy sufficient to give rise to some of those mighty but perfectly harmless pulsations of the earth's magnetic force, throbbing simultaneously all over the globe, which are called "magnetic storms," and their usual accompaniments of auroral displays and electromagnetic earth-currents. No human being can suffer direct harm from such phenomena, though, if the solar agitation were severe and protracted, as it probably would be, we might count on experiencing some of those not very serious effects upon the earth's meteorological conditions to which I drew attention last year in my project for the local Observatory. Telegraphic operators, magnetic observers, and a few watchers of the sun and sky are the only persons at all likely to have any knowledge, at the moment, of this needlessly dreaded extinction of our splendid visitor. learn from our Superintendents of Telegraphs that for many weeks past they have, been at intervals greatly embarrassed by earth-currents of unusual intensity and persistency. Since yesterday morning these have been especially severe, and many hours' work has been lost on account of them. We hear also of recent brilliant auroral displays in Great Britain and other places. All of these, I take it, have proceeded in the first place from solar disturbances caused by the comet's struggle through the sun's envelope at its perihelion passage, and latterly from the destruction of clouds of attendant meteorites, following near and far in the comet's wake, but unable, for lack of the necessary momentum, to achieve their close circuit of the sun, and therefore becoming engulfed in his mass. The phenomena thus experienced, doubtless not here only but in all parts of the world, are in fact types and forcrunners of those which will pretty certainly take place when the comet itself becomes finally im-

So many "ifs " necessarily enter into any discussion of the vexed question of comets, and specially of this comet, that it is difficult to write tersely and clearly on the subject. If-which Mr. Proctor thinks not improbable, but Professor Newcomb has denied—the comet of 1843 suffered appreciable retardation by its passage through the sun's corona; if-which nobody knows-the comet of 1880 was retarded in like manner; and if—which is not yet proved—the comets of 1843, 1880 and the present season (or the first two or the last two, or the first and last) be identical, we clearly have a case of a comet which must be gradually absorbed by and suffer final extinction in the sun. It needs very little knowledge of the celestial motions to recognise that such is necessarily the ultimate fate of a body whose velocity.

has been retarded in the manner referred to. Even supposing the present comet to be not identical with either of the other two, there is every reason to believe that its career must before calculation of a perihelion distance of only 400,000 miles be correct, or anywhere near the truth, sensible retardation must have taken place, owing to the resistance of the solar envelope.

But, in any case, the very circumstance of close contact with the sun which thus obstructs a comet's progress also wastes its substance at each successive return. The occasional emergence of a comet after its perihelion passage, apparently brighter, bigger and more glorious than during its approach, is no proof of any increase in its mass, but only of the intensity, of the solar action. In reality, disintegration and diminution of substance are necessary consequences of its intrusion into such awful company. Hence, when the end at last comes—not by a rush straight at the sun from afar, but in the act of attempting yet another circuit nearer than ever to the sun's centre-there doomed comet is but a wreck of its original self. Along with loss of mass it has lost also most of its power for evil, and the final catastrophe, whatever its exact nature may be, can produce no very serious results.

-Such at least is my opinion-on-this somewhat abstruse question. It seems to be the opinion also of far better judges than myself. That bold astronomical prophet Professor Lewis Boss-who believes that this comet is identical with those of 1843 and 1880, having in that case completed its third close brush against the sun, and that it will be destroyed suddenly, perhaps next year without further wasting, perhaps some years later-cannot have much apprehension of disastrous consequences to this earth when he admits that the event may take place "without our knowledge." and calmly indulges in a hope that we may be fortunate enough " some of these days, after watching the comet on one of its sunward ourneys, to watch in vain for its reappearance. Again, Mr. Proctor, in a discussion a few months ago of this very question, was equally assuring on the subject of our safety. Assuming for the moment the comets of 1841 and 1880 to be identical, and to have suffered retardation on both occasions at the perihelion passage, he adopted Mr. Marth's prediction of a forthcoming seventeen-year period as being possibly near the truth, thence arguing that the comet's successive returns might be expected about 1807. 1904, 1908, and so on; until, by about the year 1920 or 1925, it would be finally absorbed by the sun. He drew attention to the fact that, if the comet of 1880 were really the same as the comet of 1843, it showed very evident signs of having suffered grievously at its former perihelion. passage; and went on to remark, "Nothing which is known about comets in general, or about this. comet in particular, suggests the slightest danger to the solar system, though everything suggests that the comet's career as an independent body will before very long come to an end. If the comet ever was a dangerous one it is not so now. If it really has been effectively checked in its career, it is evident that such interruption can take place without harming us, and therefore the final throes of the comet need not trouble us in the least."

It is true that the comet, if it be indeed the same one. has returned much sooner than astronomers: expected. But I do not see that this appreciably affects the question of our safety, or that it needs cause even the most timid person among us to eleep one whit less soundly. I am. Sir.

Yours obediently

"A WORD OF CAUTION." Hongkong, 18th November, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TRLEGRAPH." SIR,-Last night about nine o'clock a most disgraceful row took place at the Hongkong Hotel. The acting manager was beastly drunk and be- be able to strut about in all the dignity and haved himself in a most disorderly manner. He seems to me to be a low fellow indeed. I hear he is an ex-cook of a German brig and has lately been discharged from the Customs' Service, a nice character indeed to be manager of the "crack" hotel of the Colony. The person in question was walking up and down the Hall, cursing and swearing at the proprietors, who were not there, the performance Hall at this time being crowded with people, waiting to see the Billiard match. No one seems to have been in charge of the Hotel, and he had everything his own way. At this stage of the proceedings the smoked Britisher, I. Citizen-of-the-world, ". even-though I. knew Brown, made his appearance on the scene, also the Captain was stowed away privately unbeastly drunk, and tried to pacify the furious | der the bed in my sleeping apartment, I would manager, and a better minstrel show you never | calmly take a dish of my wife's cool tea, and talk Matters began to look serious with those two drunken men having full charge of the Hotel; so much so, that the performance could not go on for some time, and Mr. Dorabjee was sent for. In the meantime, Brown insulted and blackguarded several gentlemen, and threatened to strike the professor, who never said a word to him. I wonder some one did not knock down the drunken bully. A constable by and bye arrived, and the manager gave himself in charge and walked off with the policeman, and tortunately did not return. Mr. Dorabjee and several of his friends then arrived, and Brown was turned out with the assistance of the police, certainly a nice state of affairs for a first class Hotel. The performance then began, but several of the west end "sports" full of liquor tried their utmost to make themselves disagreeable, passing loud and offensive remarks during the billiard match, although frequently asked to desist. These persons should have known better, several of them holding licenses themselves; and they ought to be forbidden the use of the hotel if they do not know how to behave themselves in good company.

Yours, &c., ONLOOKER. Iongkong, 18th November, 1882.

To the Editor of the "Hongkong Truegraph." SIR,—From the glowing account of the billiard exhibitions of Mr. A. P. Rudolphe which have appeared in your columns, I made up my mind to have a look at the eminent cueist, and accordingly went down to the Hotel last evening, on pleasure bent, in the full hope of being electrified by the mance. I must candidly confess that I was electrified, but in a very different way from what I expected; in fact, the most disgraceful scene have ever witnessed in Hongkong took place last night, and my object in writing to you now is that in future such a thing occurring again may be rendered impossible. The brief facts of the disgraceful 'business are as follows: -Two of the employes of the Hotel, Brown, the colored person who is well known as the chief collector, and an individual, who, for the past month, has been acting in place of the quiet, respectful manager, Mr. Heaysman, who is at present absent on leave, would appear to have been muddling their brains very "considerably in some way or other, and became very uproarious just before the commencement of the billiard performance, using very bad language indeed, and interfering with everybody. Two or three people tried to induce the drunken ruffians to go away, without avail, as Brown wishing to vindicate his rights as an Englishman, blackguarded most other nations under the sun in the foulest possible language, the French and German nations being particularly anothematised. Brown eventually wound up by attempting to assault Mr Rudolphe, who, however, was a mistaken mark, as there can be little doubt that had the time and place been fitting, the plucky little Professor would have given Brown more than he bargained for in a very short space of time. Brown's next outrage was on two of the most respected members of society in this City; men against whom it would be wrong to say a hard word, as they are both well known for their uprightness and fair dealing. The language used against one of these gentlemen was of such a coarse character that in some places I have been in would have subjected the foul-mouthed blackguard to half an ounce of lead, which he richly deserved. While the "unblenched Englishman" was holding forth, his companion, Morton by name, lately cook on a Dutch brig, and for some time tidewaiter in the Chinese Customs' Service, was treating the spectators to a choice specimen of mixed blackguardism in

A constable was eventually brought on the scene to quell the riot, and the so-called manager of the Hotel gave himself in charge of the "protector of the peace" and was marched outside. Mr. Dorabjee was brought from his quarters and soon settled Brown's hash, that misguided individual blubbering like a whipped child, when he has received permission to work the silver told by his employer to quit the establishment for good, a similar notice having been tendered to the late cook of the Dutch "wind-jammer."

Dutch and broken English, greatly to the disgust

At ten minutes past 9 o'clock everything was quiet, and the performance then went on all right. In conclusion, I would suggest to those grogshop gentry who were so uproarious in their language, that when next they visit the respectable. end of the town it would be much better if they left their "West End" behaviour at home.

Yours, &c., AN OUTRAGED CITIZEN.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

.. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TRIEGRAPH!" Sir,-I heartily agree with your very appropriate remarks in yesterday's issue, re the proected Volunteer Corps, appended to the report of the meeting at the City Hall, as I do not think the artillerists should be allowed to have the monopoly of things Volunteer. The principle of the meeting on Thursday would seem to have been, "Hurrah for the Volunteer Artillery, and to Gehenna or Connaught with the rifle corps," not a single word having been said about the latter beyond the unsatisfactory reference to it in the Administrator's memorandum. To glory of a flash uniform, and be styled captain, lieutenant, &c., has attractions doubtless for the vain and weak-minded; and it may also be pleasant for people to develop their muscles " for their own amusement and the benefit of the Colony," as the gifted leader of the Hongkong Bar so touchingly put it, though I think the less said about the benefit to the Colony the better. It must not be imagined, however, that I am wanting in due respect for the commissioned ranks, even of Volunteers. On the contrary, I esteem them so highly that, like Goldsmith's of the army with reverence. But why, I would ask, should the question of a separate rifle corps be allowed to stand over, or, in other words, be shelved, for 'it practically amounts to this? A rifle corps, I conceive, is the very thing wanted for the Colony, and should even take precedence of an Artillery Corps, which is very good, no doubt, in its way, but not the one only thing needed for Hongkong. A rifle corps, too, would attract numbers to its ranks who do not care about going in in this climate for the hard work involved in big gun drill. By the bye, now that medical examination to test fitness for service in the Volunteers is to be introduced, will the chest measurement required in recruits for the Royal Artillery be exacted in the Artillery Volunteers? If it be, I fancy a good many of those I saw at the meeting at the City Hall on Thursday evening will scarcely meet the requirement; we are to have an Artillery corps, only men of adequate physique should be admitted into the ranks. Hoping to see the implied slur cast on our brave infantry removed by immediate steps being taken for the formation of a

Some days lago we (Bulletin) had a few words to say concerning France in Italy. Germany in France is, however, a more serious theme. Germans seem to like Paris, and have taken up their abode in considerable numbers in the social capital. They have in it an organization known as " The German Gymnastic Society.' It is not only what its name indicates, but it is represented as a patriotic band of noisy Teutons, whose vociferous demonstrations in song and otherwise, give constant offence to their excitable Gallic neighbors. "The French Patriotic League.", has taken up the matter in a way that in tensifies a natural "misunderstanding" between the two antagonistic forces. The Germans persist in singing "The Watch on the Rhine," at public tables furnished with German wine and beer, and even in boasting of the military superiority of the German over the Frenchman. A Paris journal the Siecle, refering to the demonstration; declares, in its indignation, that "French courtesy will not submit to such provocation. $^{m{h}}$ It further scathingly says? "Hospitality enjoyed imposes certain duties; and the stranger who does not fulfil them towards his host is an uncouth barbarian, deservng of no respect." There is outspoken severity in this. Referring to the late war between the two countries, it says that Germany may accuse France of frivolity, but the latter will never forget the barbarity of the former. After recounting the affairs of the burning of Bazeilles and Chateaudun; the bombardment of Paris, Strasbourg, etc., the barbarous treatment inflicted upon prisoners and above all, upon the seizure of Alsace and Lorraine, it adds: "We have remembered all this, and the Germans who come to solicit our hospitality and to eat our bread, might do likewise. Escaping from a country where despotism does not even procure prosperity, they seek on the soi of France, which they so wilfully tore to pieces, work, comfort and freedom."

After a caustic arraignment of the "uncouth barbarian," and a vivid setting forth of his motive in quitting fatherland to settle in pleasan France, the journal in question continues with something that looks very much like nérvous apprehension, in this language: "We do not object to this. They may enter our factories, our workshops, to carry away the secret of our manufactures and to establish in Prussia, or Saxony, a more or less lower competition with our artisans and work-people. We willingly consent. Bu when, after pillaging and despoiling us-after . they come to this Paris to sing the Watch on the Rhine' and to threaten us with their armies, we find that they are overstepping every limit." This does give an ungratifying look to German settlement in France. It may be an overdrawn picture. It is written by an ardent Frenchman who concludes his article with a hope that "this incident" will cure his countrymen of "the mania for wanting to disarm their Government against foreigners."

THE GATLING GUN.

Dr. Gatling writes to the Army and Navy Journal (New York) as follows concerning some improvements he has been making in the original machine gun-the Gatling:-"The new improvements' recently made in the feed of the Gatling gun have proved a great success. This improved feed is positive and certain in its action, and enables the gun to be fired at all angles of elevation or depression, and gives it a power and effectiveness not heretofore attained by any other have been ordered from Germany, similar to the | fire-arm. In other words, with this new improvement balls can be fired into the air from the gun chang, one went 21 miles, the other 19-miles-per- at the rate of over a thousand per minute, and by giving the gun the required degrees of elevation, the balls so discharged can be made to fall on men behind entrenched positions at any distances, say from 100 to 3,500 yards from the gun. This principle of high angle, or mortar fire, from machine guns, opens up as it were a new idea in the science of gunnery; at all events furnishes a new and certain means of destroying men in entrenched position. It is a fact, well-known to scientific gunmen, that musket balls fired into the air descend with sufficient force to penetrate two or four inches of timber, and showers of such balls fired from a Gatling gun (by giving the gun proper elevation) would be as effective as if discharged directly from the gun at the object penetrated. By the use of range-finders and other means, distances can be easily determined, and as stated, by giving the gun certain degrees of elevation, the balls discharged from it can be made to fall with certainty at the point desired, and as the range of the gun can be maintained while it is being fired, a continuous shower of balls can be discharged in the air and rained down, as it were, on the heads of men behind ordinary breast-works. The foregoing results can be easily attained by the intelligent use of the Gatling gun as now constructed. The lock mechanism of the gun has also been greatly improved. New extractors are now used which same have been fired. These improvements are
